2019 Annual Conference Course Descriptions

2019 NASJE Plenary Speakers

Discovering Your Everest – Luís Benitez

Consistent with the conference theme of “Conquering Mountains Together,” extreme mountain climber Luís Benitez inspires us to scale new heights in both our professional and personal lives. Benitez has climbed the famed “Seven Summits” 32 times, including Mt. Everest on six occasions! More than a master climber, Benitez relates the lessons he’s learned from the world’s most remote peaks to everyday challenges in life and work. Come learn how his 7 Summit Themes can help you meet your goals. (Hiking boots not required.)

The Principled Politician – Adam Schrager

Come learn about the inspiring, yet little-known legacy of the man whom the Colorado Judicial Center was named after! Journalist and author Adam Schrager tells the riveting story of a political leader who had the courage to stand up for what was right, no matter the political and personal consequences.

The Intersection of Humans, Education, & Technology – Eric Anctil

Technology is changing every part of our world. It impacts how we relate to others, as well as how we perform our work. It can help us maximize our efforts in collaboration, creativity, information sharing and teaching, or, in the negative, separate us from co-workers. In this session, we will explore the adult learner’s relationship to technology both in and out of the classroom. Professor Anctil will share the findings of research on the social aspects of technology and how it is changing the nature of learning. You won’t want to miss this session that will challenge and energize your thinking about how technology relates to your work as a judicial educator!

Thursday, October 17
6:00 PM Optional Newcomer Dinner	Welcome to NASJE! Meet in the lobby of the ART Hotel and join us for a short walk to the Broadway Market Place for a casual evening of food, networking and fun.
Friday, October 18
9:00 AM – 4:00 PM Registration
9:00 AM – 3:00 PM Fundamentals of Our Profession Margaret Allen & Cyrana Mott	Is educational development an art or a science, or maybe a combination of the two? In this session, we'll look at theories and practices often used by judicial educators nationwide, as well as current trends in the profession. Topics include instructional design and development theory, teaching strategies, faculty development, and real-time performance support!
9:00 AM – 3:00 PM Thriving in Times of Change: Mastering Resilience and Renewal Alanna Moravetz & Liz Bullard	An experiential workshop that explores ways in which judicial educators can not only survive, but thrive, in an ever-changing profession? What's not to like? Based on Frederic Hudson's research on positive psychology, this workshop provides a framework for understanding the circular nature of change and development, and how personal reflection on the demands of the profession can make us more resilient. By the end of this session, you will see how a personal commitment to well-being and flexibility also pays dividends to the workforce we serve.
3:30 PM – 4:30 PM Past Presidents' Meeting
5:00 PM – 7:00 PM President's Reception Hosted by President Anthony Simones & President-Elect Janice Calvi-Rumerman	The President and Board of NASJE welcomes you to the Mile High City—Denver, Colorado! Please join us for some of the Rocky Mountain's finest bites, beverages, and hospitality with NASJE colleagues and hosts.
7:00 PM – 9:00 PM Film Viewing: "A Better Life" Joseph Sawyer & Kelly Tait	This year's film is a gem that many people missed when it was released in 2011. The American drama "A Better Life" follows an undocumented immigrant working as a gardener in LA and struggling to keep his son away from gangs and immigration agents. Mexican-American actor Demián Bechir was nominated for an Academy Award for Best Actor for this role. Join us as we watch this film about a father trying to overcome obstacles and make "A Better Life" for his child. [Film discussion offered on Saturday.]

Breakout C Coach Approach: Sustainable Change for Judicial Branch Leadership Leslie Gross & Nancy Fahey Smith	Judicial Educators are responsible for finding and providing the best education possible for court employees across their state. These employees include judges, court administrators, and an array of leaders, managers, and supervisors. Leaders in these groups are responsible for numerous tasks, including the most difficult: managing people. In this session, educators will learn how teaching a coach approach will equip court leaders with skills to improve retention, teamwork, productivity and more. The result? High performing, engaged and adaptable employees.
11:30 AM - 1:00 PM Lunch	All conference attendees are invited to enjoy lunch with NASJE colleagues and learn more about our organization' goals and objectives, as well as how you can help us meet our lofty
1:15 PM - 5:30 PM Experiential Learning Opportunity
Managing the Spotlight: A Judicial Educator's Role in the Effective and Ethical Management of High-Profile Cases	Legal journalism has profoundly changed in the last several years due to the impact of the internet, financial pressures, and a decline in the number of professional reporters. As a result, many cases that would have received significant coverage five to ten years ago receive far less attention today. However, cases that do catch the public eye can receive overwhelming media attention, such as that provided the Aurora Theater Shooting trial. In this ELO, we'll visit the courthouse where the trial was held, and receive personal accounts from the judge, court administrator, public information officer, media, juror, and a survivor of the shooting. Participants will receive tips and advice for proactively educating and preparing your judicial branch for supporting your courts in comparable situations.
6:00 PM - 8:00 PM Dinner OYO / Optional Activities	Check out your "Welcome to Colorful Colorado" guide to explore Denver on your own or find optional group activities such as Taste of Denver food tours, brewery tours and other local attractions.

8:00 AM – 5:00 PM Registration & Sponsor Exhibits
8:15 AM – 9:30 AM Plenary – The Principled Politician: The Ralph Carr Story Adam Schrager
9:45 AM – 11:00 AM Breakout Sessions
Breakout A Helping Courts Address Implicit Bias: Ten Years Later Jennifer Elek, Lynn Muscat, Jennifer Juhler & John Laing	We've all heard of "implicit bias," but just how is this social concept currently impacting courtrooms and the pursuit of justice? This session will update judicial educators on the science of implicit bias, as well as share new developments by the National Center for State Courts. Dialogue will include experiences, lessons, and resources from a panel of judicial educators who have developed and delivered innovative implicit bias courses in their own states. Attendees will be asked to share their own lessons and experiences to identify best practice approaches on this challenging topic.
Breakout B Did That Even Do Anything? Designing and Evaluating Legal Training Programs Andy Yost & Alicia Summers	As our profession moves away from "one-off training" to a "learning ecosystem" model that creates a continuous culture of learning and high performance, how does that impact the design of your legal training programs? This session focuses on how to design durable, longitudinal, and measurable programs using a variety of mixed modalities, media, and evaluation. Specific attention will be paid to determining whether the training you provide results in a desired change of behavior.

Breakout C A Whole World of Learning: Using Literature and Film in Judicial Branch Education Lee Ann Barnhardt & Gabe Goltz	We have all taken (and taught) judicial branch courses involving statutes, court rules, administrative orders, and/or leadership and management texts. But are there other content sources that can be used to create great judicial branch training? This seminar explores the use of literature and film in judicial education. Faculty will take participants on a fun (“My Cousin Vinnie”) and engaging (“To Kill a Mockingbird”) exploration of literature and film that not only entertains but enlightens as well. Information will include best practices in the use of literature and film, and how to avoid any potentially embarrassing copyright law violations.
11:15 AM – 12:30 PM Breakout Sessions
Breakout A How to Make Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity Part of Judicial and Court Staff Education Todd Brower	Did you know that the U.S. Supreme Court’s historic finding that the Constitution guarantees the right to same-sex marriage was delivered less than four years ago? And that’s just the tip of the iceberg. Additional LGBTQ issues are flooding courthouses, including same-sex adoption and parenting, same-sex intimate partner violence, placements for transgender and gender non-conforming youth, and same-sex divorce. In this interactive session, participants will discuss how we can efficiently integrate LGBTQ issues into a curricula for judges and court staff, from implicit bias courses to incorporating sexual minorities into standard education courses. In addition, we’ll explore how to assess the knowledge and comfort level of your audience, as well as steps you can take to reduce potential conflict.
Breakout B Civic Education as an Essential Element of Judicial Education Anthony Simones & Lee Ann Barnhardt	Too often, civic education is seen as a nice-to-have, as opposed to need-to-have, component of judicial education. In reality—and now more than ever—public trust and confidence are at the heart of the power and authority of the judiciary. This trust and confidence will not materialize without public knowledge about the functions and roles of the courts. In this session, we’ll review unique and creative civic education programs offered throughout the nation that not only provide essential knowledge about the judiciary, but also open doors to public trust and confidence.
Breakout C Liberating the Adult Learner Andy Yost	It has long been understood that adults and children have different learning styles. But did you know that advancements in technology, not to mention forthcoming innovations, will revolutionize adult learning strategies? In this hands-on session, we will look at five practical, yet creative, tools you can use to liberate adult learners and create spaces for genuine transformation. Join us for a look at how the use of multimedia, infographics, online virtual spaces, and other technological

Breakout B Podcasting 101: How to Create a Podcast and Use It as an Education Tool Bill Delisio	While video training has proven effective, it can also exhaust a budget (particularly when taped/edited by a professional videographer). Welcome to a cheaper, simpler solution—podcasts! The session will provide an overview of how Colorado courts are using podcasts to build community, support teaching/learning, all while building a library of interviews that focus on collaboration among the branch. An overview of the equipment and software needed to produce a podcast at low cost will be provided.
Breakout C Understanding Legal Marijuana Ben Barnham & Chris Halsor	Hey, we're in Colorado, right? But it is not the only state in which changing marijuana laws are impacting caselaw and court management (i.e., recreational marijuana is legal in 10 states; medical marijuana is legal in 33). This session provides an overview of the ever-changing world of marijuana, including laws, products, types of marijuana, delivery mechanisms, and current data and scientific literature concerning how this issue is impacting communities, courts and the legal profession.
